ARMED FORCES JOURNAL

Successful First Flight

"If your goal is to make AFJ the leading journal of national security debates, you are succeeding in a big way."

Maj Gen, USAF

"...keeps me abreast of many issues AFJ puts out."

Professor, Florida International University

"...a real thought-provoking periodical."

LTC, US Army TRADOC

"...the discussion of air power describes the process of adaptation...to military operations in urban environments."

Lt. Col. USAF

"...looks to history for lessons on air power tenets that are better suited to 'small wars'."

Lt. Col. USAF

AFJ is the independent forum of ideas and analysis for viewpoints among military, industrial, educational and thought leaders in the defense community. AFJ sparks and showcases dialogue about critical emerging issues, encourages the exchange of ideas, introduces concepts, and shares the knowledge of key contributors on strategic and operational military issues.

Contributors include: former Under Secretary of the Navy, Military Assistant to the Deputy Secretary of Defense, command pilots, trade lawyers, and soldiers with war experience. If you want to keep up with present and future-warfighting, or if you are an advertiser seeking the attention of more than 16,000 U.S. senior military officers (O4 and above) call: 1-800-252-5825. www.armedforcesjournal.com
